Hosting a blood drive is...

Life-Changing

Hosting a blood drive is more than just an event – it's an opportunity. By hosting a drive, you are brightening the lives of local hospital patients, while simultaneously providing a valuable volunteer experience to individuals within your organization. Among other things, blood drives make it possible for patients' families to celebrate second chances, drive organizers to delight in the fruit of their labor, and donors to experience an overwhelming sense of pride and togetherness. Whether you are a school, business or worship community, hosting a blood drive is truly a life-changing event.

Convenient

Many people have the desire to make a difference but simply don't know where to start. When you host a blood drive, you provide individuals at your organization with a convenient – yet meaningful – way to make an impact on local residents. Giving blood at a company or community drive enables donors to give of themselves, while eliminating the difficulties associated with finding the right volunteer opportunities.

Thought-Provoking

Donating blood saves lives right here in our own community. Thankfully, it also creates dialogue about health issues, and encourages donors to examine their own health and well-being. When individuals donate, they are given information regarding their blood pressure, temperature and iron levels. This information often leads to an increased awareness of good health measures and an overall desire to remain healthy and fit.

Free

When you host a blood drive there is never a need to solicit financial donations. Your volunteers are asked to contribute something far more valuable. A blood donation gives patients in our community a second chance at life, which is priceless.

Be a Part of Something Great
